- 3. Construction has begun on a new airport at Tvanovka (131-01, 42-45). The site of the field is at the junction of the highway and railway line on the edge of the city. Nork on this field has been impeded by the departure of 759 of the workmen for Iman (133-40, 45-55).
- 4. There is also a field 20 miles northwest of the city of Semenovka (133-20, 44-05), serving as a base for the Hsingan Area Reconneisance Group. Detailed information about the field is closely guarded and it is very difficult to gain any information concerning its functions.
- 5. The 2431st Unit of the 254th Division of the Boviet Army is stationed at Varfolomeevka (133-30, 44-20) fields #1 and #2. On / January 1947 there were four planes of Hank 112 model and two large transport planes at field #1. On 5 January there were 27 single-seater fighter planes of unknown model at field #2.
- 6. At Taita, 23 miles northwest of Cupu (126-06, 52-45), there is a Soviet field designated as #24, organized as follows: Fuselage Department, Engine Department, Instruments Department, and Electrical Department.
- 7. The Japanese-built airport in the mountains surrounding Keshanchen (Keizanchin)(128-00, 21-25) was occurred by the 258th Airforce on 17 January, 27 of their planes landing on the field the same day. Length of runway 2,600 feet, width 200 feet, two runways intersect.
- 8. On 31 January, one major and two lieutenants of the Soviet Air Force were seen at the Chinese Communist sirfield at Lopei to je (130-53, 47-53), north of Chinese sau. Their purpose was to see how well the Chinese Communists were repairing the field; Chinese at the field felt that the Soviets only interest was in surveying the field for future use by the Soviet Air Force.

In translating the word "buildings" in the original documents from which this information was obtained, translator "ound instances in which the original said "bouses (tents)". That may account for the large number of so-called "buildings" which arrear in the data on some of the fields. This may also account for the large number of bangars which are supposedly at some of these fields. The Soviets often dip a square hole, cover it with canvas and call it a house. For this reason, in some instances, source has referred to them as "houses" or "buildings", while in others they were called "tents".)
